

Invitation for paper submission_the 10th Asia-Pacific Conference on Combustion

Dear Colleagues,

The Asia-Pacific Conference on Combustion (ASPACC) is a biennial conference sponsored by the Combustion Institute and organized by members of the Asia-Pacific regional sections. The 10th ASPACC will be hosted by the Chinese Section of the Combustion Institute, and is scheduled to be held on July 19 to 22, 2015 at Tsinghua University in Beijing, China.

On behalf of the ASPACC Program Committee and the Tsinghua University Host Committee, we invite you to submit your original, unpublished papers for presentation. The deadline for submission of full-length manuscripts is March 15, 2015.

The length of each paper, including the text, figures, tables, and references should be between 4 to 6 pages prepared in a single-column format. Single-space all text material, including references, table titles, and figure captions. For more detail, please consult the conference website using the link below: (<http://aspacc2015.cce.tsinghua.edu.cn/>). We also request the courtesy of your assistance in distributing this call to your colleagues as well as other avenues of announcement that you may be aware of.

Furthermore, in recognition of the increased quality of the papers presented at the ASPACC conferences, the Program Committee also plans to follow the tradition of the international combustion symposium in designating distinguished papers in selected topics of presentation. Please submit your best works to the conference.

Thanks for your support to ensure the success of this important biennial event for the Asia-Pacific combustion community.

Best regards,

Conference Chairman
